We define the product of P-polynomial association schemes. Although the product may not be an association scheme anymore, it inherits many good properties. A Johnson scheme is the product of two Hamming schemes. In this view of Johnson schemes, following a generic strategy, a lower bound of the sizes of relative designs of Johnson schemes is obtained. A key step is to show that, a certain matrix is almost strictly totally positive, which relates to zero distribution of some special function.